

Sea Ridge

Inspired by whale spines, I designed a series of 3D models that use the vertebrae as connecting points, showcasing their relationships through interweaving and abstraction. This work reflects the potential application of natural elements in architecture. The abstract approach aims to awaken people's awareness of maintaining ecological balance, caring for marine life, and promoting harmony between humanity and the natural world.

